To whom it may concern:

I'm writing this letter so you will know how thankful I am that I found Earthen Concepts & Development, Inc. and Dan Sunderland.

I hired Dan and Earthen Concepts after working with an associated supplier through which he was contracted for his expertise and knowledge. After some preliminary meetings with Dan, I was confident he would be able to help me with my home construction project. He was able to bring his unique understanding and knowledge to the stock plan I had paid for and thought I wanted; he redesigned it so that it was far better. The energy efficient systems he put together for me really make a difference.

I had been looking at building my own home for a few years, and researching several plans and building materials. I knew that I wanted an energy efficient home and had considered several options. After a lot of consideration and research I settled on SIP's and a manufacturer, who so happened, contracted with Dan and his company for his expertise with the SIP's product. After some preliminary meetings with Dan, I was confident he would be able to help me with my home construction project and hired him on the spot. Dan was able to take my personal house plans, customize them to meet my needs, and develop an energy efficient home system that was truly professional.

All through the planning and redesign stage of the project, Dan took a lot of time explaining and going over details, helping me to clearly understand what we were doing and why. In addition Dan also coordinated with contractors and suppliers, assisted in the construction and has really helped me all throughout the planning, building, and coordination process. He created a hybrid Solar Thermal hot water system for my house that not only heats the water for everyday use, but also uses the water to heat the home.

Dan's recommendations and guidance throughout the project were invaluable, and I whole heartedly recommend Dan Sunderland and Earthen Concepts to anyone considering a building project!
